

Why look beneath the surface?

Because it is the ultimate long term business strategy

Because it's what most of us were trained not to do

Because that's where the opportunities are

Because being a “learning organization” is more than philosophy

Because scientists are trained to use microscopes

Because patients deserve our very best

Because the best learning can often be unlearning

Because it disturbs the system

Our company was formed more than thirty years ago – committed then as it is today to reducing medical errors and reducing malpractice liability by improving clinical performance and patient outcomes.

We have benefited from clients ranging from great hospitals to not so great hospitals, with one thing in common: they were willing to look at perceived clinical quality problems. What we know for sure is that valid clinical information is the only path to real solutions. Physicians, clinicians, senior management, and boards of trustees will work positively together when independent, external, objective information serves as the basis for decision-making, boundary management, and consensus building. The unparalleled expertise of QualVal is looking beneath the surface!
